

New Book Information

Labour Law and Labour Market Regulation

Essays on the Construction, Constitution and Regulation of Labour Markets

Edited by:

Christopher Arup, Peter Gahan, John Howe,
Richard Johnstone, Richard Mitchell and Anthony O'Donnell

Publishing 29 September 2006 - The Federation Press

ISBN 1862876118 – Hardback - 768pp

- Australian RRP $125.00
- Direct Price* $115.00

Categories: Economics, Industrial & Employment Law

THE BOOK

The traditional boundaries of labour law are becoming outmoded in a modern world in which active labour market participants vastly outnumber “employees”, and the world of work extends way beyond the workplace gate. There is convergence with labour market regulation. The contract of employment remains central but is no longer the sole object of study

Labour Law and Labour Market Regulation is a state of the art presentation of the latest Australian scholarship and research surrounding this seismic change. Its 38 chapters reflect the dramatically different industrial, social, political and legislative contexts in which the law now operates and the intellectual revolution this is generating.

The latest theoretical thinking and empirical findings are gathered together in four parts:

- the varying purposes of regulation;
- the different institutions and technologies of regulation;
- the active role regulation plays in the constituting labour markets; and,
- the regulation of the processes by which employment rights and obligations are determined.

For academics, the book provides much material to enliven and diversify their courses. It advocates fresh intellectual approaches which take account of international scholarship and, while mindful of the latest legislative changes, it adopts a long-range, multi-locational and pluralist view of Australian labour law.

For practitioners, the book provides insights into areas that are, as arbitration declines, becoming increasingly important to their clients' interests. The most recent legislation and jurisprudence is discussed in many chapters including discrimination, dismissals, health and safety, immigration, social security, franchise, volunteer and contract law.

CONTENTS

- Part One - Purposes of Labour Market Regulation
- Part Two - Labour Market Institutions and Regulatory Techniques
- Part Three - Constituting the Labour Market
- Part Four - Labour Market Status, Forms of Engagement, and Rights and Obligations in Work Relationships

PTO for Order form

The Federation Press Pty Ltd

ABN 67 003 409 318 PO Box 45 Annandale NSW 2038 Australia

Phone: (+ 61 2) 9552 2200 Fax: (+61 2) 9552 1681 Email: info@federationpress.com.au

Website: www.federationpress.com.au

ORDER FORM

Labour Law and Labour Market Regulation
Essays on the Construction, Constitution and Regulation of Labour Markets

Edited by:

Christopher Arup, Peter Gahan, John Howe, Richard Johnstone, Richard Mitchell and Anthony O'Donnell

ISBN 1862876118 - 768pp - Hardcover - RRP $125.00 / Direct Price* $115.00

*Direct price applies when purchased direct from The Federation Press and payment accompanies order.

Name _____ Inst./Firm _____

Address _____

Postcode _____ Tel () _____ Fax () _____

Email _____

Payment Method: [] Cheque [] AMEX [] Diners [] Visa [] Mastercard

Cardholder Name _____ Card Number _____

Expiry Date _____ Signature _____

Qty	Price*	Amount
_____	_____	$ _____

#Freight: Please Add $9.00 postage and packaging for delivery within Australia $ _____

Total $ _____

MP946

The Federation Press Pty Ltd

ABN 67 003 409 318 PO Box 45 Annandale NSW 2038 Australia

Phone: (+ 61 2) 9552 2200 Fax: (+61 2) 9552 1681 Email: info@federationpress.com.au

Website: www.federationpress.com.au